How to Use Artificial Intelligence in Your Daily Life
AI and Better Judgment: A Live, Interactive Session with Real-World Examples

Keynote Speaker: Gary Stewart
Inaugural Lecturer of Entrepreneurship at Yale Law School, Head of Adobe Private Capital Americas, Founder of MyCofoundr.AI, Yale College '96, Yale Law School '99

Wednesday, April 29 | 4:00 - 6:00 PM

Moorings Park Grande Lake - Theater
7410 Little Lane Naples, FL 34105

Artificial intelligence is changing how we think and live. Sophisticated reasoning that once required teams of advisors, weeks of analysis, and significant expense is now available instantly and transparently. Yet, most people continue to use AI like an advanced Google search.

Join Gary Stewart for a conversation about how to use AI to make better decisions with far less time, cost, and reliance on intermediaries.

This interactive session will feature live, on-screen demonstrations. Gary will begin with a brief introduction to leading AI platforms and then, together with the audience, explore real-world scenarios in real time. Potential demonstrations include:

- evaluating whether to buy or sell a property;
- assessing financial decisions;
- planning vacations, with destination comparisons, pricing, and itineraries;
- interpreting medical information;
- informing personal, cultural, and lifestyle decisions.

Attendees are encouraged to submit, in advance of the session, questions and real-world scenarios they would like to explore to YaleClubofSWFL@gmail.com. All submissions will remain anonymous. Attendees may also raise questions or scenarios during the live session.

Guests will leave feeling energized, empowered, and better equipped to navigate an ever-changing world where speed, clarity, and good judgment increasingly determine optimal outcomes.

Registration includes presentation and networking reception.
